

NETFLIX – “Chimera” video sequence details and scenes

By Ioannis Katsavounidis, Sr. Research Scientist, Encoding Technologies
Los Gatos, CA Nov. 2, 2015

This document provides details and lists the various scenes present in NETFLIX's “Chimera” video sequences.

BACKGROUND – VIDEO CHARACTERISTICS

Professional crew, on behalf of Netflix who owns its rights, in Mar. of 2014, filmed this video sequence in Los Angeles, CA, depicting various activities. Netflix makes this content available to the research community for research and development purposes.

The camera used for shooting was a RED Epic Dragon

Video frame size is  $4096 \times 2160$ , square pixel aspect ratio, with different frame rates, namely

- 23.97fps (24,000/1,001 frames per sec.)
- 25fps (25 frames per sec.)
- 29.97fps (30,000/1,001 frames per sec.)
- 50fps (50 frames per sec.) and
- 59.94fps (60,000/1,001 frames per sec.).

Color format is YUV422 progressive, with 10-bits per sample; color space is BT.709.

Accompanying audio is 2-Ch stereo, 48KHz sampling frequency, 16-bit signed samples (little endian), PCM (uncompressed). Audio files are not currently distributed as part of this package, but they are available.

VIDEO FILE DETAILS, DOWNLOADING, CONCATENATING, CHECKSUMS

The original file format is IMF (MXF), YUV422p10le. It is provided in raw, planar YUV422p10le format, which means each sample is saved in 16-bit unsigned integer little-endian format, of which the 10 least significant bits are representing the sample value in the range [0,4095]. Each sequence is broken down in individual episodes, and each episode contains a number of scenes. Both 8-bit and 10-bit versions of Chimera are available through this distribution.

CONTENT SCENES

For the rest of this document, frames are indexed in the range [1,n] and scenes are also 1-base indexed.

A scene consists of consecutive video frames depicting the same visual content. Scenes are concatenated in order to produce a video sequence. There are two types of transitions between scenes:

- Scene cuts; this is the case where the last frame from a certain scene is immediately followed by the first frame of the subsequent scene
- Fade-in/fade-out, where a certain number of frames (usually, between 20-60) at the end of a certain scene are overlapped and averaged in a weighted fashion, with the same number of frames in the beginning of the subsequent scene.

We present the scene information below in tabular form.

- For each scene, a brief textual description is provided, together with the overlapping fade-in/fade-out frame numbers. Please note that, when present, the Fade-Out Begin and End frames coincide with the Fade-In Begin and End frames for the subsequent scene.
- First Frame and Last Frame correspond to the middle portion of a scene, immediately after Fade-in is concluded and immediately before Fade-out has commenced.
- Scene start frame # is either the first frame, for scene-cuts, or the middle frame of the Fade-in Begin and End transition. Similarly, Scene end frame # is either the last frame, for scene-cuts, or the middle frame of the Fade-out Begin and End transition.
- Thumbnails were chosen as the middle frame of each scene (excluding fades).

For ease in downloading, each file is offered in multiple .zip pieces, each one at a maximum of 2GBytes (2,147,483,648 bytes). Upon downloading the pieces, one should simply concatenate them using either the "cat" Linux command, or the "copy /b" DOS command, and then unzip the resulting file. Many utilities accept multi-part .zip files, as well.

Here are sample concatenation commands for Linux and Windows:

cat NETFLIX_Chimera_4096x2160_2398fps_EP01_00816fra_10bit.zip.* >
NETFLIX_Chimera_4096x2160_2398fps_EP01_00816fra_10bit.zip

copy /B
